A unique grand PALAZZO believed to have been built in 1589, which due to its size is thought to have been the home to one of the wealthy knights forming part of the order of the Knights of St John. Today this property has been converted with excellent taste into a private residence, having very large walled gardens full of fruit trees and a private pool and also an entertainment area. One enters the property through a grand hallway which leads onto a generous central courtyard. The ample accommodation boasts many grand rooms with high ceilings. The Palazzo could easily have 4 to 5 bedrooms. This property is truly unique and all the architectural features such as stone carvings and a private chapel are all intact and in excellent condition. Adjoining the house is a 6 car garage.
